Lions Club Hosts at Seventh Annual Dinner For A.T.H.S. Athletes

Robert Scott Awarded the Sportsmanship Trophy By Students

Sixty-nine Antioch Township High school athletes were feted by the Lions club Monday evening at a dinner attended by 150 persons at the school cafeteria.

Special recognition was given Robert Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, who as a four-letter man received the sportsmanship trophy. Coach Maurice Kruzan presented the trophy to young Scott and said that the youth has shown a good attitude in the four sports, football, basketball, baseball and track as witnessed by his companions who favored him with their vote.

William Brook, president of the Lions club, served as master of ceremonies, and introduced the main speaker, Johnny Kovatch, line coach of Northwestern university.

Kovatch told the student guests and their hosts that it is advantageous to have a goal in life and to work toward that goal with a determination.

"Success in sports is a matter of determining what you want to be and setting out to achieve that purpose," he said. He advised the students to train for their life work in the same manner that they train for sports.

Music was provided by the Sequoia Music Makers. The response to Brook's welcome address was made by Lawrence Reidel, a senior, who is president of the A club. Fred Scott, member of the board of education and father of the winner of the sportsmanship trophy, represented the board of education; Coach Maurice Kruzan, the varsity squad; and Warren Polley, the freshman-sophomore squad, also responded to the welcome.

The dinner was prepared by Mrs. Eva Burnette, manager of the cafeteria, and served under the direction of Miss Naomi Miners, faculty member. The Pep club under the direction of Miss Iris McKinney, had charge of table decorations. The combination colors used were those of well known universities.

This is the seventh year the Lions club has entertained the athletes. While lists of various athletic groups were read, the athletes will not receive their letters and numerals until Award day.

4-H Clubs To Plant Trees At Camp Shaw-waw-nas-see

District 4-H Club Camp, Shaw-waw-nas-see, will take on a new look in a few years, thanks to the 4-H club members who are to plant a number of trees on Saturday, April 9.

A group of club members from each of the counties in the Camp area will assemble at the 70 acre camp grounds in the morning to take part in the tree planting ceremonies, according to Ray T. Nicholas, Lake County Farm Adviser. The Club members will be under the supervision of extension foresters who will demonstrate the correct method of planting the trees.

Trees to be planted include Eastern red oak, scarlet oaks, Norway maple, sugar maple, hackberry, soft maple and red maple. Additions will also be made to the windbreak planting, which will include Norway spruce, Douglas fir; red pine, Austrian pine and Colorado blue spruce.

This year's tree planting marks the third time 4-H members have engaged in this activity at Camp Shaw-waw-nas-see.

M. Y. F. BASKETBALL TEAMS VICTORIOUS

Both the boys and girls of the Methodist Youth Fellowship won their respective games in the semi-finals of the district tournament.

The girls' team beat Waukegan with a score of 26-3. All the points that Waukegan scored were free throws.

The boys' team reigned victorious over York House with Bob Wilton and Pres Reckers leading the scorers with ten points each. The final score was 31-17.

This Friday night the finals will be played at the Spaulding school, located at the intersection of Green Bay Road and Grand avenue. The public is invited to attend, as two very interesting games are scheduled. The Antioch girls' team will play Lake Villa and the boys' team will play Waukegan. No admission is charged and the games start at 7:00 p. m. sharp.

Georgia Ray Drury, piano teacher, will give a recital Sunday afternoon, April 3, at the Scout home at 4 p. m.

Dale Barnstable, Member Of Kentucky NCAA Champs Visits Here

Mrs. Eva Barnstable and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barnstable met the former's son, Dale Barnstable at the Chicago airport Sunday afternoon on his return with the University of Kentucky basketball team from the NCAA basketball tournament at Seattle, Wash.

Kentucky won the National Collegiate Association championship for the second time in its victory over Oklahoma A & M.

The University of Illinois team also returned on the same plane having won third place in a victory over Oregon State in the final minute of play.

In winning the NCAA twice Kentucky became the No. 1 team of the nation. It was the last game for several of its outstanding players. Lost by graduation are the center, Alex Grazo, guards Ralph Beard, and Cliff Barker and forward or center Wallace Jones. Dale Barnstable and James Line are the only ones of the big six left for next year.

Dale left on Monday afternoon after the day's visit here to resume his studies at the university.

Grass Lake School Tax Increase Proposal Beat By a Vote of 96 to 52

Further Move Awaits Caucus to be Held at School April 9

Nonplussed by the results of last Saturday's referendum in which the proposal to increase taxes to meet the educational expense was voted down 96 to 52, directors of Grass Lake school said they will await the coming caucus April 9, before making further move.

Charles Kempf, president of the board, said that it probably would be necessary to borrow money on anticipation warrants to pay the teachers and keep the school going. Thomas R. Dowd, Antioch Rte. 1 and Nathan Kalloway, who lead the opposition in defeating the proposal, said that their group now has a grave responsibility in seeing that the school affairs are "managed competently."

Those who defeated the measure claimed that $2,500 instead of $4,500 was needed to balance the budget, although this was disputed, it was said by W. C. Petty, county school superintendent, who thought the needs were greater than the lower figure.

Walter Forbrich, secretary of the board, denied rumors that he and Arthur Anderson would resign as the result of the decisive defeat of their proposal at the polls. Kempf previously had indicated he would not be a candidate, declaring the whole thing is too much of a headache.

Included in the group who worked for the defeat of the proposal were E. J. Kugle, Harry Stott, Frank Ballwan, John Topper, George Jacobson, Irving Flint and Don Fleak.

This informal organization promises to be active in the caucus but has not listed its candidates as yet.

Gavin School Activity Night Will Be Held April 5 at High School

The first Gavin School Activity Night will take place in the Grant High School auditorium Tuesday, April 5, at 8 p. m. The proceeds will go to help an educational trip to Springfield, Ill., for the eighth grade graduating class.

The third and fourth grades, under the direction of Mrs. Werhan, will play several popular pieces on their symphonettes. There will also be an accordion solo by Donna Orr.

Tap Dancing Two eighth grade students, Genevieve Axelsen and Donna Orr, have prepared a tap dance number for this occasion.

Dads to Play Basketball The seventh and eighth grade boys will clash in the final contest of the season to see which is superior. They will then combine their forces, and have full intention of giving the eighth grade dads a lesson in the art of basketball. The grade school challenge has been accepted by the fathers. This will be a contest of age against youth.

Boxing The first boxing bout of the evening will be between Glen (one round) Hodson and Edmond (Butch) Lauten both first grade Wilson Road prodigies for the heavyweight championship of the world. The climax of the evening will find eighth graders Richard Wisner and Don Weishaar exchanging blows.

The line-up is as follows: Glen (one round) Hodson vs. Edmond (Butch) Lauten George Hucker vs. J. B. Hobbs David Ferrigan vs. John Weishaar Robert Swanson vs. Ronald Werhan

Richard Smith vs. Harry Lem Donald Barth vs. Richard Fredricks

Charles Stanton vs. Jerome Boia

Teachers Assemble Program For Grade School Musicals At High School on April 8

Antioch Grade school teachers with Hans von Holwede supervising in the upper grades are assembling a program for the annual music festival to be given at 8 p. m. Friday, April 8, in the high school auditorium.

Because of last minute changes the program will not be issued until next week. Each room will supply at least one number.

A plan by which the pupils will be entertained with moving pictures in the gymnasium while they are not performing again will be adopted this year. The assembly room was found to be too small for the group and the program in the gymnasium kept the youngsters occupied and provided a place for parents to get them after the musical program.

Economic Highlights

The dramatic non-stop, round-the-world flight of an Air Force bomber can be viewed from several perspectives. It was a technical achievement of high magnitude. It indicated the peak quality of the military equipment we are now producing. And, above all, the flight was undoubtedly planned to dovetail with our present international policy.

About a year ago, according to reports, a similar flight was projected, and was abandoned at the insistence of the State Department, which then felt it would further annoy the Russians and make an amicable settlement of U. S.-U. S. S. R. disagreements even more difficult. This time, significantly, the State Department took another view, and either endorsed the venture or did nothing to stop it. That in itself is a good example of the change in American diplomatic thinking that has taken place in a very short time. Our policymakers have clearly come to the conclusion that anything resembling appeasement of Russia can only result in more Communist aggression. Along with this, they feel the need to strengthen the resolve of the Western powers, particularly the smaller ones, which run the greatest potential risks when they throw in their lot with this country and Britain.

The flight, in effect, served notice on the world that American power exists in fact as well as in theory—and that the entire globe is within reach of our military arms. What one plane has done, swarms of others could do in the future if the need arose. But the fact that the flight required several refueling contacts enroute again demonstrates forcefully the need of a balanced military establishment including a navy capable of defending and supplying bases.

Western Europe has long wanted definite demonstrations of this country's military strength. The Western military alliance, if it is to succeed, must have its material base in the United States. Unpleasant as the fact may be, the most sincere pledges of mutual purpose are meaningless unless there exists a huge reservoir of armed force to give the documents meaning. At present, there is a question of just how far this country can or will go in supporting that alliance. The European countries, very naturally, would like an outright guarantee that we would go to war if they were attacked, or their independence seriously threatened. That point of view also has many sincere adherents here. But there are equally sincere opponents, who believe that it might be disastrous to commit ourselves in advance of the fact. The search is being made for an acceptable compromise between extremes.

Someone has said that the "cold war" is turning into a "cold peace." But no one can now see an end to the saber rattling on either side.

More Class Legislation

The Federal minimum wage and hour law, as laid down in the Fair Labor Standards Act, has always contained certain exceptions and exemptions. One exemption applied to retail trade, for the very sound reason that this enterprise has various jobs which are suited to beginners, young people, and totally unskilled labor, and which do not justify higher rates of pay.

Under the revised version of the Act, as approved by the House Labor Committee, the retail sales exemption would be restricted to employers whose total volume of sales does not exceed $500,000.

This change is much more important than may be generally realized. First of all, it is definitely class legislation. It says, in effect, that smaller stores need not pay the Federal minimum wage, but that larger stores must. The dividing line is purely arbitrary, and without basis in reason. Stores operating side by side, on the same street in the same town, would have a different standing in law.

Secondly, it is entirely possible that this provision when coupled with a high minimum wage would produce unemployment. If a store were forced to pay 75 cents an hour for inefficient, untrained help, it would naturally seek ways and means to reduce the number of people on the payroll. The cost of labor is a heavy factor in retail business. It has, as we all know, done much to force commodity prices up. The pending law might very well destroy opportunity for the marginal worker.

In any event, fair labor standards should apply with equal force to all the elements within any given industry and region. To single out either a large business or a small business for punitive treatment is indefensible.

Unfounded Claims

Judging by the claims of the public power groups, the people of this country are eager to destroy private ownership and free enterprise in this all-important industry, and to replace it with one form or another of government ownership and political management.

Such a claim is easy to make. But it's a very different thing to back it up with incontrovertible factual evidence. When the people have had a chance to vote on power questions, they have generally turned thumbs down on this form of socialism.

That has been the case for many years with proposals for municipal electric plants—a long list of them have been beaten, and only a relatively few have been approved. And there are other ways to measure the degree to which the public is satisfied with the kind of service provided by the business-managed utilities.

In Oklahoma, for example, 39 towns voted on whether or not to give a franchise to the state's leading utility, between May, 1944, and February 1 of this year. Every town voted affirmatively. Still more impressive are the majorities by which the franchise carried. Totaling the 39 elections, less than two per cent of the citizens voted to oust the private company. More than 98 per cent voted in favor of retaining it.

It is heartening to report that there is more and more organized opposition to socialization of the power industry. In the Pacific Northwest, newspaper sentiment against the proposed Columbia Valley Administration is overwhelming, and top state officials are fighting it. Perhaps the people are at last awakening to the fact that socialization of one enterprise would be the signal for extending that blighting political philosophy to other activities.

SHORT STORY

Night Trip

By RUTH K. KENT

MAMMA tried to rest her head against the stiff plush seat back. My land, how did a body get any sleep on these trains? Mamma glanced at the girl sharing her seat. She was stylish looking. Papa had found this seat when he put mamma on the train. "She's young. She'll take care of you," he'd whispered.

Mamma needed someone to look after her... this was her first train trip in years, and she wouldn't be going now if Hank hadn't wired that Irene had to go to the hospital. And who would take care of her grandchildren...?

She waited for the girl to turn her way. Maybe she was bashful.

She hadn't said a word and they'd been riding an hour. Mamma leaned back with a sigh. She was tuckered out, and her throat felt funny. Goodness, was she going to have a fainting spell? A drink of water... where was it? She caught the girl's eye. "Do you know where the drinking water is?" mamma asked.

"At the end of the car. Bring me one, too, will you?"

Mamma pulled the gold watch from her belt. Eight o'clock. The time when she and papa always had a snack. Mamma brushed at her eyes. Silly to miss the old coat so.

Mamma took the shoe box from her knitting bag. She could feel the girl watching. "Want a sandwich?" mamma smiled, "these are chicken and these home-made liver sausages." The girl reached for the chicken sandwiches, both of them.

Mamma was tired. She twisted sideways and tried the back of the seat again. She tried putting up her arm and leaning her head on it, but the arthritis in her fingers started aching. The girl looked so comfortable and mamma sat back and watched her. Pretty little thing.

MAMMA remembered when Hank was a baby. Big oversized youngster, never would let her cuddle him. She'd always longed for a girl. But the second baby, the one that didn't live was a boy too. And so were the grandchildren.

People were milling about the car and every time the door opened a draft swept over mamma. She looked longingly at the girl, nestled in comfort. As if feeling mamma's eyes on her, the girl turned and stretched.

"Comfortable?" mamma asked. The girl yawned. "No. It's too hard."

Mamma looked longingly at the window sill. "You have to share. Now if we could sort of rest on each other...."

The sullen mouth curved into a smile. "All right," the girl said.

She looked like a girl to take care of Mamma, Papa thought.

She hunched up her knees and rested her head against mamma.

"My lands," mamma gasped. But the girl was breathing steadily already.

Mamma looked down at her. She never saw a girl with hair so yellow and eyes so dark. The lines around the red mouth were soft now, the lips full. Mamma looked about cautiously, then slipped a timid arm around the girl. She felt cuddly as a baby.

Mamma wakened at daylight. "Oh my goodness, I'm almost there!" She patted her hair and smiled at the girl.

HANK scooped mamma from the train. "Gee, ma... he kissed her, "the baby's here and Irene's okay."

Mamma's eyes were watching the tall girl walk away. Then Hank hustled mamma into the car. "Was it a rotten trip, ma?"

Mamma nodded. "The train was crowded and cold. But I sat with the nice girl. If it wasn't for her I couldn't of stood the trip. She did... so much for me."

She squeezed Hank's arm and it was hard and strong. "Another boy, I suppose," she sighed.

Hank shook his head. "Girl this time." And mamma remembered golden hair, a soft cuddly body.

LEPROSY BATTLE

Doctor Goes To Marianas

HONOLULU.—A modest 26-year-old navy doctor has set out for Tinian island, in the Marianas, to start the first leprosy control effort in the Pacific trust territory. Lieutenant (j. g.) Jack W. Millar, of Palo Alto, Calif., volunteered for the assignment on tiny Tinian island, where the navy is completing construction of a temporary leprosarium with facilities for treating 100 patients, natives of the Marianas, Marshalls, Carolines, Palau and Yap.

Until now about their only treatment was to be segregated as outcasts by their neighbors.

In preparation for his new job, the young doctor spent a month and a half on Molokai island, in Hawaii, working with Dr. Norman R. Sloan, director of the famed Kapalua leprosy settlement.

Dr. Millar believes the islands of the trust territory provide a fertile field in the treatment of leprosy.

"I don't know how many lepers there are in the islands," he said, "but I think the number will exceed 500 and may possibly be as high as 1,000."

No Diagnoses Made

Extensive clinical diagnosis of cases on the 150 populated islands has not been made, he said, but there are 60 known cases on Yap, another nine on Guam and some on Saipan.

In all, there are 50,000 natives on the Pacific islands, which cover an area of about two million square miles.

The most heavily populated island is Truk, former Japanese naval stronghold. It has more than 10,000 inhabitants; Saipan and Ponape each have about 5,000.

Tinian has no native population. It was a B-29 base during the war and is now occupied by only a small naval force.

With two naval medical corpsmen working with him, Dr. Millar said, "We shall study all types of leprosy in all stages; our work will be both experimental and practical."

Has No Fear

Dr. Millar has no fear of contracting the disease.

"Leprosy is not easily transmitted," he explained. "Medical science has learned that it is a disease of childhood and can be contracted only after a long period of contact. Transmission even by actual inoculation has not been exten-

“He is eager to get started in his new assignment, which will extend over two years.

Once a case has been arrested, the patient will be returned to his home island," he said. "Then at frequent intervals he will undergo a check to see that the disease does not recur."

These checks will be made, in most cases, by native medical practitioners, who are to be trained for their work.

Leprosy, the doctor said, is of the same family as tuberculosis. Under a microscope the bacilli of the two diseases look almost identical.

Death among lepers is usually caused by tuberculosis or by an obstruction in breathing—not by leprosy itself—he said.

Doctor's Heart Massage Revives Woman From Death

CHICAGO.—A woman, who doctors believed had died on an operating table, was revived by a surgeon who made a quick incision and massaged her heart with his fingers.

A spokesman for Dr. Max Thorek, chief surgeon at American hospital, said Mrs. Julian Brittan's heart stopped beating while she was being given an anesthetic for an appendicitis operation.

Dr. Thorek not only revived the woman but a few minutes later performed a successful appendectomy on the 23-year-old woman, the spokesman said.

Dr. Thorek was summoned immediately when the woman's heart stopped. He made an incision over the heart. He made two other incisions in swift succession—one which pierced the diaphragm and another to cut through the pericardium which surrounds the heart.

Slowly, he began massaging the heart with the rhythm of a normal pulse. Seconds later the heart was beating feebly. He continued. The heart beat gradually became stronger.

Fisherman Has System for Discouraging Competitors

SOUTH BEND, IND.—Fisherman Michael Infalt has a favorite fishing hole in a Michigan lake and he doesn't like too much company when he is working it. Infalt has no monopoly on the hole but he has a system that serves the same purpose.

Infalt goes to his favorite spot about dawn and usually finds a flotilla of other boats anchored at the hole. Then he sets up a gasoline burner on the boat seat and fries bacon and eggs. Other fishermen inhale the aroma, get so hungry they can't stand it, and paddle back to shore for breakfast.

SHORT STORY

Impossible Journey

By SHIRLEY RAY

IT WAS the fifth morning in a row so Mrs. Laughton was not surprised. She slipped out of bed quietly, reached for a robe, and put it over her shoulders.

Before dawn, every morning of that week, her four-year-old daughter had wakened her with gentle but insistent tugs to tell her about the dream she'd just had. Had they been nightmares, Mrs. Laughton would have been eager to get up to comfort a frightened child, but they were never nightmares. They were always gay and fanciful dreams that made the little girl's small face glow with wonder and delight.

So Mrs. Laughton, as on the other mornings, took Ellen into the kitchen and poured a glass of milk for each of them.

With both small hands wrapped around her glass, the little girl sat on the edge of a too large chair and with shining eyes, eagerly told her dream.

"I DREAMED I was sleeping, Mommy, and that the North Wind stopped right outside my window and called my name. He said, 'Ellen—Ellen—wake up and come to the window. Then I'll put you on my shoulder and take you for a ride with me.'"

Mrs. Laughton took a drink from her glass of milk. This dream was going to be very much like the others. Something or someone—once a bluebird, once a fairy—she couldn't recall what the others were—came to the window and offered to take Ellen on an impossible journey.

Mrs. Laughton yawned. She would like to have put her daughter to bed and ended the tale at once, but the thought of Mr. Laughton and his sure-to-be-bad disposition made her ask patiently, "What did the North Wind look like, dear?" Ellen was enthusiastic.

"He was green," she declared importantly.

Mrs. Laughton thought to herself, "She doesn't know one color from another."

The child continued. "He had long pointy green shoes and long green hair and a long green nose." The wide eyes and little blonde head leaned forward and the small voice became confidential. "He was all green except for the buckles on his shoes. They were silver and shaped like stars and they sparkled so bright that I had to blink

"We went way up high over the houses and trees."

my eyes as we went through the air."

Mrs. Laughton yawned again. Ellen didn't notice.

"After I climbed onto his shoulder," she said, "we went way up high over all the houses and trees. We woke the leaves and they made shivering noises whenever we passed by. We stirred the dust from the streets so they would be clean for morning.

But soon he said that he must take me back home because there were other towns he had to visit before the night was over. So, (she sounded genuinely disappointed) "we came back to my window. He lifted me down from his shoulder, said goodnight and went away—way up in the sky."

"That's fine, dear—such a fine dream," she said, and added hastily, "Now let's go back to bed."

It was morning. Mr. Laughton had left for the office a couple of hours ago, and Ellen was playing in the yard.

Mrs. Laughton made Ellen's small bed. She picked up a rag doll and set it in a chair. She put the two miniature bedroom slippers in their place in the closet. She picked up a rumpled nightie and started to hang it away.

There was something in the pocket—something heavy. Mrs. Laughton put her hand inside and felt it. It was cold and hard.

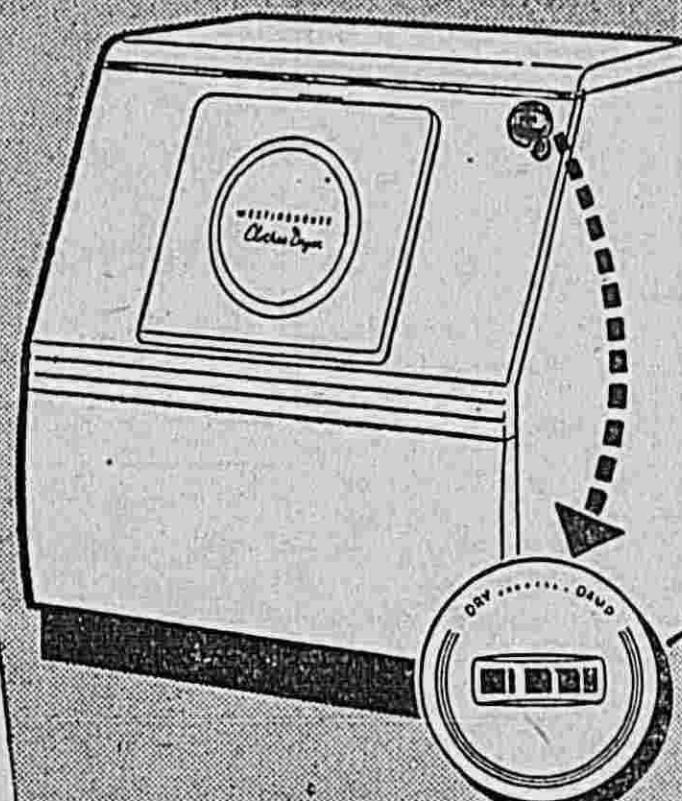

She drew it out slowly and held it in her hand for a long time. It was a silver buckle in the shape of a star.

Odd Collection Disposal Poses Treasury Puzzle

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Among other things, the treasury department is fussing over what to do with one 10 karat collar button and three hairpins.

Items such as these are about to crowd the money out of the government's huge vault in the treasury building basement.

The stuff was turned over to the treasury as unclaimed by the state department. For safe keeping.

Most of it originally belonged to Americans who were living in foreign countries. When nobody showed up to claim it, it was given to the American diplomatic representatives. They shipped it to the state department.

The treasury would like to do something about it, but can't. There is no law which would allow it to hold a public auction on the huge stacks of German marks from before World War I or Russian rubles.

Secretary Helpless

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder is as helpless as the next one. For one thing, he doesn't even know the combination to the safes. W. R. Julian, the treasurer of the United States, knows how the locks work, but he's not talking.

Anyhow, to get back to buttons and hairpins:

In 1934 the state department sent a small boy over to the treasury under heavy guard with a large envelope, along with a little note stating that the owner could not be located.

The treasury people opened the folder and found one pair of horn rimmed spectacles with gold mountings in a black case; one cuff button; one collar button; one woman's handbag containing a pair of manicure scissors, one gold earring, a gold ring and a Cuban coin worth about a nickel; a rusty .22 caliber revolver that wouldn't shoot and a cheap watch, junior size, that wouldn't run.

The three hairpins turned up in another packet, which came from Yokohama, Japan.

Articles Pile Up

As the years go on, such things pile up and gather dust in the dark, massive vaults.

The collection goes back a long way. One letter on file tells of a flock of bonds captured in Louisiana in 1865 and turned over to the treasury for "safe keeping." They are still there. The letter says the bonds, payable to the city of New Orleans, were worth at the time $4,476,980 and were captured at Shreveport July 12, 1865, by Gen. Philip Sherman.

There are a lot of curios in the vaults. One is a gold medal which was supposed to have gone to a man who did a lot of heroic work in fighting an epidemic of yellow fever in the tropics. The name of the man isn't on the record, but the medal inscribed to "An Unsung Hero" was turned over to the vault keepers.

The buttons and medals and bonds keep coming in. The treasury is about to throw in the sponge—or move to a larger building...

Pope Says Apostle Peter Buried In "Eternal City"

ROME. — Pope Pius, in an address to 6,000 Rome students, said that the burial place of the Apostle Peter "is and was under the cupola of St. Peter's Church."

Archaeological findings "demonstrate that," the Pontiff said.

It had been anticipated that the Pope, sooner or later, would affirm the truth of the tradition that St. Peter, martyred in Rome, was buried on the site of the world's largest Christian church.

However, he had been expected to delay the disclosure until sometime during the Holy Year, opening next Christmas Eve.

The Pope made his statement about St. Peter's burial place quite casually, in the course of an address, whose topic was the duty of the young to prepare themselves for "responsible offices" in later age.

He urged upon the students the study of Latin—"not a dead tongue but the key that opens the fountains of history"—as of Italian and other modern languages.

Neighbors' Charity Puts Postmistress Out of Job

WALES, WIS. — Her neighbors' charity has put Postmistress Mrs. Hazel B. Mason right out of a job.

The residents of this Waukesha county village have sent so many relief packages to Europe the post office receipts have gone over the $1,500 per year limit set for fourth class post offices.

That pushes Wales up to third class and automatically vacates the postmaster's position. It must be filled through a competitive civil service examination.

Mrs. Mason, who has been postmistress for 10 years, had to send to the town newspaper a notice that her position is open and examinations will be held. However, she can take the examination herself and there's a good chance there will be no contest.

Whitfields Celebrate 55th Wedding Year

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitfield of Edgebrook, Ill., who have had their summer home at Lake Marie for the last 35 years, celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary and Mr. Whitfield's birthday anniversary recently.

At first planning to entertain 69 guests, the couple had to change plans owing to Mrs. Whitfield's health. A week ago Sunday they called in a few guests by telephone for a buffet luncheon at 6 p. m. Most of them were Lake Marie friends. All had a good time even though it was short notice. The Barteeks of Lake Marie stopped in on their return home from Florida.

The Family Night program will consist of three sound pictures. The first is entitled, "Go Forth" and tells the story of Dr. William Barkley, Jr., a discharged veteran, who makes an important decision in his life. The second picture, "The Way of Peace" presents the challenge of Christianity in the light of the atomic bomb. The third, "America's Wonders" is a travel film of some of the most inspiring wonders of America's many natural wonders.

The program begins with a pot-luck supper at 6:30. Those attending are asked to bring their own table service.

The newly formed Family Night Committee met at the parsonage on Sunday evening and completed a tentative list of programs for the next year. The committee consists of Mr. George Good, chairman, Mrs. Robert Cary, Mrs. E. J. McDougall and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kufalk.

Boxers of Don Franciscos At Bluff Lake Win Prizes At Dog Exhibit in Chicago

Mr. and Mrs. Don Francisco of Bluff lake entered four of their Boxers in the 9th annual Kennel club all-breed dog show Sunday at the International Amphitheatre, Union Stock Yards, Chicago and came away with great recognition for their entries.

The show was one of the largest of the year. There was a record-breaking entry of 1,895 pedigree dogs representing 94 different breeds.

The Franciscos won the open class and became reserve winner with Clinaude's Don Juan II, or Johnny as he is known among the Boxer breeders.

He excelled the dog that won the open dog class at Madison Square Garden in New York. A beautiful golden fawn he is a dog that the Bluff Lake residents bred and raised themselves. He was shown as a puppy and had 14 ribbons to his credit before he was a year old. He is now on his way to fame as a grown dog.

Their little female, Clinaude's Franciska, year-old daughter of International Champion, Karlo V. D. Wolfsschucht, a German import, won a blue ribbon in the novice class over a large entry. It was her first showing and she really held up her great father's reputation.

Clinaude's Yvette, their young female, also a year old, got a third place in the limit class. Last but not least, a young promising Brindle male Clinaude's Don Jose, bred and raised by them, won the puppy male class over a large entry. This is old stuff for him as he was shown in Louisville, Ky., New York city, and twice in Chicago and has never been defeated in any show. These dogs all won prize money, sterling silver trophies, and ribbons.

The dogs have helped to convince their owners that they are engaged in a successful hobby. Mr. Francisco has started an all-breed obedience class which is held on Tuesday nights in the Warren Township High school building at Gurnee. He formerly was a Boxer obedience trainer for the Midwest Boxer club in Chicago for several years.

Sources of Uranium

The rich pitchblende deposits of the Belgian Congo and Canada's Great Bear Lake region, which supplied experimental materials for the first atom bomb, are still considered the world's outstanding uranium sources. Czechoslovakia's pitchblende from the Jachymov mines is often mentioned, along with the newly important carnotite ores of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, and Arizona, and the extensive but uranium-light titanium of Arkansas.

Helps Diamonds Sparkle
Palladium a gleaming white precious metal, 100 times rarer than gold, is being increasingly used as trim around diamonds to enhance the sparkle of the gem, a leading refiner reports. Often used with yellow gold for two-tone effects, or as a ring setting, it is not always stamped on the jewelry piece containing it, either with its full name or by the accepted abbreviation of "Phall," it is pointed out.

Woman Heating Home With Device Trapping Heat From Sun's Rays

DOVER, MASS.—Dr. Marie Telkes heats her home with an 800-square-foot glass and metal device that traps the sun's rays for her "solar house." The rest of the heating system consists of a cheap chemical unit that Dr. Telkes developed in experiments at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The pioneer model cost about $3,000 to install but Dr. Telkes expects it to operate indefinitely without additional expense. There are other benefits besides the end of fuel bills, she says. No fire hazards. No coal or oil shortages. No transportation tie-ups. And no coal-shoveling, ash-carrying or mechanical breakdowns.

To find out whether the unit will heat the house during the cold weather, she will live in her five-room home during the winter. She

British Health Programs Come in for Wide Kidding

LONDON.—The national health service, which now accords free medical care to every Briton who wants it, is being subject to considerable ribbing, as is Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, who presides over its benign operations. Doubtless the majority of people here approve of its provisions, but at the same time the English have a stubborn tradition of independence and a detestation of regimentation, even one so enlightened as that implicit in free medical attention.

Widely circulating in England are neatly printed "application forms" satirizing the national health service, the recipients of which are urged to fill out immediately and forward to Minister Bevan. Aneurin Bevan is not a humorless official but he is beginning to get surfeted with the mountains of these kidding applications on his desk. In part, the form reads: "I hereby make application for a permit to be ill."

"2. I declare that I have broken my (a) arm (b) leg (c) back (d) engagement;"

"3. I declare that I fully expect to be sick again in . . . hours;"

"4. I declare that I am afraid I shall (a) die (b) not die;"

"5. I declare that I am in (a) bed (b) desperation (c) my coffin;"

"6. Does your wife work?"

"This form when completed should be submitted to the local health officer. Should the applicant die before the Permit to be Ill is issued, a fresh application for a permit to be declared dead should be submitted by a relative or creditor."

Avoid Damp Stalls

Damp stalls, pens or bedding may lower a calf's resistance and lead to pneumonia or other infections. Also, calves need plenty of fresh air; let them exercise on dry, clean days.

Threat to Public Health

Among the more than 70 diseases that infected animals can spread to humans, brucellosis now stands out as one of the three most serious threats to public health. The other two are sleeping sickness and rabies.

Tomato Juice

A five-ounce glass of tomato juice gives an adult about one-third of the vitamin C he needs for a day. A half-cup serving of canned tomatoes will supply about the same amount. Tomatoes are about one-half as rich in ascorbic acid as are oranges. The vitamin keeps well in both foods because they are acid before they are digested.

Don't let
dim your electrical future

Bottleneck wiring can make your new home an electrical antique before you move in. Insist on adequate wiring in the home you're building or planning.

Adequate wiring means having enough outlets, switches and circuits, to take care of all your present and future appliances without the nuisance... and danger... of overloading, dimming lights and blowing fuses. Adequate wiring is your assurance that all the comforts and conveniences electricity makes possible are yours when you want them.

The difference between the cost of a "just average" electrical installation and an adequate wiring installation is small. It costs a little more but offers many advantages. In the years to come as you add the many new electrical appliances that become available you'll benefit from your foresightedness. You'll be glad you installed adequate wiring.

There's an Electrical Future for Apartments, too.

Farsighted apartment owners and builders eliminate bottleneck wiring, too, in order to assure the future desirability... and present safety... of their buildings.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

COMMUNISTS

Saxon Mines Harbor Reds

HAMBURG, GERMANY.—Christina Peter, a 24-year-old German girl, who volunteered for low-grade uranium mining in Saxony, said she estimated that more than 100,000 Germans were at work in the mines. Food, liquor and cigarettes were fairly plentiful but Communists were continually trying to convince workers to join the party.

A German-speaking Russian officer trained German girls on Russian-built listening instruments. The instrument, Christina said, had two large earphones and a metal stick. Both were connected with a battery which was carried on a belt around the shoulder.

Before she was sent into the mine, she worked with a group of Russian and German technicians equipped with divining rods and other instruments to comb the surface.

Had To Report

Whenever her earphone reacted with a bell-like sound she had to report to the next Russian, who marked the place and ordered a Russian technician to go through the test again.

After that job she was sent underground into a primitively constructed mine. Her job was to test all ore and rocks coming out of the tunnels for radium or Uranium, she said, was easily recognized by a violet-colored stripe going through the stones.

All the labor is not voluntary. An 18-year-old German youth who escaped estimated that between 30,000 and 50,000 persons were in Soviet forced labor camps in Saxony.

Still wearing the rubberized clothing and boots issued to him when he went to work in the uranium mines, Gerhard Rieffenstahl described conditions in the labor camps. A blond six-foot youth, Rieffenstahl, now virtually a human skeleton, said he lost thirty-five pounds during his two months of forced labor for the Russians.

Lived in Barracks

The miners live in barracks, small camps and among the German populace, the youth said. He stayed in a room with 10 other men. Although they were unguarded, they were warned not to try to leave. The entire area was blocked off, with guards at all railroad stations and roads.

The miners are fairly well paid, Rieffenstahl said. He received 400 marks per month, which is $33 at the official rate of exchange, or about $10 at the more realistic black market rate.

Food rations were supposedly somewhat higher than in Berlin, but only in theory. The penalty for being late to work was a 50 per cent cut in rations, and since the mines were far from the barracks and the transport system poorly organized, few workers were ever on time.

Tale Retold of Lincoln's Visiting New England Site

HINGHAM, MASS.—The oft-mentioned possibility that Abraham Lincoln may have visited his ancestral home here 100 years ago has been revived.

The question arose when the Lincoln house was presented to the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities. During a visit to Boston in September, 1848, Lincoln was supposed to have "vanished" for three days.

The lost three days are discussed in Elizabeth Coatsworth's new book, "South Shore Town."

Miss Coatsworth believes Lincoln may have visited Hingham in those three days to "commune" with the ghosts of his ancestors and to draw vigor from their yeoman blood."

The first ancestor of Lincoln came to Hingham from Hingham, England, in 1637. The Lincoln house, a story and a half gambrel roof cottage, was built some time later on the original land plot of the Lincoln family.

Drift of South America From Africa Idea Studied

CINCINNATI.—Did South America drift apart from the continent of Africa?

The question is reopened by the research work in South America of Dr. Kenneth E. Caster of the University of Cincinnati, assistant professor of geology and fellow in the graduate school of arts and sciences. He returned recently after almost four years in South America, where he traveled widely gathering geologic data, much of which bears on the theory of "continental drift."

His visit to South America was under the auspices of the United States department of state and the Guggenheim foundation.

"None of the findings in South America definitely proves or disproves the drift hypothesis, but they are significant enough to warrant additional field studies in South America, India and Australia to make necessary comparison," Dr. Caster said.

He added that he hoped to make trips to those continents to continue his research.

Food, Housing Costs Rise as Government Increases Spending

Everybody has heard about the rising cost of living, but practically no one has heard about the rising cost of government, Ed Vos, lumber dealer of Antioch pointed out today in commenting upon housing and living costs.

Most people think an 18c loaf of bread represents an increase in the cost of bread. Actually 5c of this price represents Government tax costs. A 10c loaf of bread can no longer be sold for 10c if the government adds a 5c tax cost to it, Vos said.

People think of these things as increased living costs, he said, but actually every time the government increases its expenditures, the cost of living immediately rises in direct ratio.

For example, he continued, since 1929 the cost of government has gone up 5 times (from $10 billion to $51 billion). In the same period the cost of food and tobacco alone has gone up only 3 times, and the additional money is buying these commodities for approximately 23 million more people than it did in 1929.

This increased cost of government, Vos pointed out, is reflected more vividly in the following figures: In 1929 the government received an average of $33.99 for every person in the United States. In 1948 it received approximately $305.19 per person, in spite of the fact that there are some 23 million more persons supporting the government today than there were in 1929.

Most people think an 18c loaf of bread represents an increase in the cost of bread. Actually 5c of this price represents Government tax costs. A 10c loaf of bread can no longer be sold for 10c if the government adds a 5c tax cost to it, Vos said.

When your government proposes to spend more billions of money for public housing, more billions for public medical care; additional billions for the unemployed; more billions for maintaining farm product prices and other millions to subsidize education, don't forget the cost of a loaf of bread, he advised. And, if you're thinking of buying a home don't forget that this may add to its cost, too.

For example, he continued, since 1929 the cost of government has gone up 5 times (from $10 billion to $51 billion). In the same period

Step Up Penicillin 'Crops'
Production of penicillin "crops" can be stepped up through X-ray treatment of the molds in a new process patented recently, according to National Patent Council. Doses of 50,000 to 150,000 roentgen units are applied to mold spores. Though most of the spores are killed, those remaining are newly induced, mutated strains which produce larger "crops."

Sleeping Car Equipment
As of October 1, 1948, more than 95 per cent of all sleeping equipment delivered to the railroads in the postwar period, has been built by Pullman-Standard. This is a performance far above the company's postwar percentage of total sleeping car orders.

Balanced Rations for Cows

Almost any grain or grain mixture such as corn or oats will balance the rations for both milking cows and growing heifers. Just to make sure the herd is getting enough phosphorus, it might be a good idea to add 100 to 150 pounds of wheat bran to a 1,000-pound mixture of corn and oats.

Bear and Bull Fights

Mexicans of California in the days before that territory became a state, frequently captured grizzly bears for the purpose of staging fights between them and fierce bulls.

The bears were generally captured by the use of lariats and fast horses. Several riders were required.
